

WHY THOSE GUNS?

A dispatch from New Orleans to a Democratic paper in describing election day incidents speaks of several shooting affrays in which men were killed and wounded. It says that after one fracas information was sent to an armory "where a squad of the Young Men's Democratic Association men were stationed with Winchester rifles." We want to know what those young Democrats were doing with so many guns?

Why was it necessary that they should arm themselves to protect their right to vote?

They were opposed to the bourbon element of the State which had determined to suspend all law and justice for the day in order to defeat the Republicans and their progressive allies. What would be thought of an election in a North-western city where every voter who went to the polls was obliged to carry a Winchester rifle or a bulldog revolver?

The most significant comment upon the outrageous frauds in the Louisiana election is the simple statement of the arsenal of weapons that was called into use.

STILL THEY COME.

The New York Sun prints the following:

The statistics of Castle Garden, which was printed yesterday, shows that the Spring immigration from Europe is beyond precedent, and that the years arrivals will surpass any year since 1832. In fact, there are signs that the record of 1888 will be the largest history of Castle Garden. A recent cable dispatch brought us the news that a sufficiency of steamers were not to be found in the British ports to convey the passengers desirous of sailing to the United States.

The most noticeable feature of the statistics is the evidence of the continuance and increase of the immigration of Italians, Huns and Russian Jews.

It is evidently that the importance of these elements of our population is hereafter to be far greater than it was in foreign times.

These men came here to overcrowd the labor market and lower the wages of American workmen.

Will the Chronicle please write out the address of welcome.

FALSE PRETENSES.

The APPEAL is in receipt of a pamphlet from John Sherman which essays to set forth the reasons why he should be the Presidential nominee. It gives a pretended history of his great work for the people, but fails to make clear the jugglery by which he demonstred silver by a piece of trickery that would shame a three card monte player. He is painted as the greatest financier of the nation, when he was in reality the man who, in the interests of the gold bugs of Wall street, doubled the bonded debt. He poses in the pamphlet as the great friend of silver, when he is the trickster who demonstred it.

Sherman's pamphlets are thrown away in this section.

United States authorities are straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel in opposing the entrance of an English clergyman, engaged at a stipulated salary by a New York church, while letting in without question, hundreds of laborers, imported from the Azores to compete with Americans in our vineyards and orchards.

The libel suit against the Stockton Mail has been dismissed. The ring which tried to down the Mail has come to grief, and Mueuter, the slippery attorney who thought his character besmudged, has been left completely in the mud, meriting the contempt of all decent people.

The Enterprise gives notice that San Francisco journalists who rail at Nevada must not stand round the Palace Hotel and borrow money of Nevada people whenever they show up. It is high time somebody dried up.
